CARROLL MILL RUIN - 1833 - West side of Carroll Road, 1.2 miles north of Phoenix. Large, roofless stone gristmill ruin, shown in 1850 map as H. Carroll's. An earlier mention is found in the 1833 Assessor's field book of Old District 5 and in a water right agreement of the same year, when the mill was being built. During the 1850 census, Cornelius Brown was tenant operator. It was still shown as "Mrs. Carroll's Grist Mill" in 1915 atlas. It was a two-story mill with gable roof, steel overshot water wheel per an old photo. Henry D. Perkey had planned to use the mill to train the student agronomists at his ill-fated Oread College of 1904. Owners: Mr. and Mrs. Martin J. McDonough,
